Before India halted trans-shipment, Bangla border port saw sharp uptick

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, April 10

BEFORE INDIA TERMINATED the trans-shipment facility for Bangladesh's export cargo, trucks and consignments saw a sharp uptick at Petrapole, the nation's largest land port, data shows.

New Delhi halted trans-shipment facilities for the neighbouring country on April 8, days after Bangladesh chief adviser Muhammad Yunus advocated the extension of the Chinese economy around the strategically important North-east India region.

India first allowed trans-shipment of export cargo from Bangladesh to third countries using Indian Land Customs Stations and subsequently Indian ports and airports on June 29, 2020.

According to sources in the Petrapole Land Port's customs department, in FY24, 3,373 trucks with trans-shipment commodities or export cargo entered Petrapole from Bangladesh, with 4,733 consignments valued at ₹2,357.27 crore.

In FY25, 4,686 trucks (a 39% increase) with trans-shipment commodities entered Petrapole with 7,772 consignments valued at ₹3,446.66 crore.

"The facility was extended by our country to Bangladesh in 2020, but it saw little response that year and in 2021 and 2022. In 2023, though, transshipment consignments arrived in good numbers, and there was a sharp increase thereon. Primarily, ready-made garments come to us as commodities and are then flown to European countries like Spain. The rush of consignments is seen before the European festive season, including Christmas," said a senior Customs official at Petrapole. Officials explained that trucks from

Bangladesh first carry the consignments to Petrapole, where they are checked by land port and customs authorities. Indian trucks then take them to Kolkata or Delhi airports.

"Every day, 150-200 trucks enter from Bangladesh, of which around 15-20 carry transshipment commodities. From India, around 400 trucks go to the Bangladesh side. Ever since we received the notification, no transshipment consignments are being allowed. However, normal import-export truck movement as well as passenger movement between the two countries continues," said Kartik Chakraborty, secretary, Petrapole Clearing Agents' Staff Welfare Association.

"Four trucks stationed on the Bangladesh side (Benapole land port) returned to the country yesterday. Most transshipment consignments from Petrapole used to go to Kolkata airport and then to foreign countries, either directly or via Delhi airport. This is bad news for exporters of Bangladesh, mainly garment exporters. It was cheaper and easier to send through India. Indian truck owners that used to carry the consignments from Petrapole to Kolkata or Delhi airports will suffer losses too. So will labourers who unload and load the consignments in Petrapole," Sajedur Rehman, secretary of the clearing agents staff association in Benapole, Bangladesh, said.

Priyansh's clear-cut batting ethos: Watch the ball & hit it

SANDIP G
New Delhi, April 10

WITH A WITTY one-liner, uttered with an expressionless face, Punjab Kings' Priyansh Arya, reveals his batting ethos: "Attacking batsmen hamesha out hote to woh bahur ganda hi lagta hain."

He was not talking about the aesthetics of six-hitting, but his immunity to the criticisms that blow his way when the attacking strokes he lives by nails his end too.

He clarifies: "Not just me, look at every attacking batsman. It's part of the game, and I don't think about failures, or whether this shot could get me out or not, when I am batting. I just watch the ball, and look to hit it," he says.

His thoughts, like his batting, have an irreducible simplicity. He only sees wide open spaces on the field, and a hard ball that will fly off the blade. So the first-ball duck against Rajasthan Royals didn't inhibit him from hitting a first-ball six against Chennai Super Kings. Even the most enthusiastic IPL greenhorn would have exercised restraint the second time around. But why shouldn't he, when he is bursting with his six-hitting self-belief?

He remembers a chat with Ricky Ponting in the nets the day after Jofra Archer's corks had dishevelled his stumps. "He asked me what I would do if I get a similar ball the next game. I told him I would try to hit the ball for a six. And he told me it is not a problem and that anyone could get out first ball in the first ball of the game," he says. The reassurance of

But few though would imagine, let alone hit, the first ball of the next game for a six. He did, slapping the wideish ball over point without fuss, with a brisk, anti-clockwise tilt of his wrists, from the left-handed Khaleel Ahmed. A catch, from a leading edge, was spilled next ball. But Priyansh batted as though nothing had happened. "It didn't weigh in my mind, everybody drops catches. We dropped plenty too," he says. He brushed the reprieve aside with another

swamping six the same over.

Beneath the outwardly soft-edged exterior, though, is an intelligent schemer. When Ravi Ashwin, with a wealth of 765 international wickets, marked his run-up, from around the stumps, he immediately second-guessed the masterful spinner's designs. "I figured out what he was trying to do, bowl into my leg and cramp me. So I decided to sweep him, and it is exactly how he bowled," he says. And it was exactly how he greeted his first ball. By now, he was reading Ashwin's mind like a psychoanalyst. He waited on the back foot for him to err and slugged him over wide long-off.

Every fifth ball he has faced this IPL has landed beyond the fence (15 sixes off 75 balls). He does so with a note-perfect bat-swing, which makes up for his lack of Chris Gayle-like shoulders or the forearms of Sanath Jayasuriya or the wings-span of Matthew Hayden. But he dismisses the media-spun portrait of him as a natural six-hitter.

"It is not true that someone is a born six-hitter. It is something that you get with maturity and exposure. When I started, I was a timid boy. But I became bolder after I began to play more frequently," he says.

He could come atypically soft-spoken for a cricketer from Delhi, but he doesn't take refuge in platitudes. He could be playfully blunt too. Asked about the "specifics" of Ponting's counsel to him, he faked innocence. "I frankly don't remember what he told me. I would remember it only when I am at the nets or batting in the nets," he says. As if to assert his innocence, he repeats, "Sach mein sir, sach mein yaad nahin hain."

Bill to scrap post-study work permit may draw fire in US

MANU KAUSHIK
New Delhi, April 10

WITH THE US government reportedly preparing a Bill to terminate Optional Practical Training (OPT) programme, India's study-abroad platforms remain unconvinced that it will succeed. They argue that the legislation would be detrimental not only to students but also to the US higher-education sector, and expect significant pushback from universities and industry alike.

"Any legislation like this will reduce the number of students going to the US, in addition to having an impact on the quality of students that the US universities will attract," said Karunn Kandoi, founder and CEO of Vidya Education.

Experts stated that the bill is still in its early stages and is largely driven by a handful of advocacy groups. "If implemented, the Bill will severely impact nearly 4,000 universities in the US who are dependent on foreign students to fill their seats. Over the past few years, the enrolments of local students in US universities has gone down drastically due to declining value of degree programmes. This has increased their dependence on international students. The universities will likely oppose this Bill, and hence, we don't see any near-term implications," said Saif Iqbal, vice president at ApplyBoard.

OPT, which is tied to the F-1 student visa, allows international graduates to work in the US for up to 12 months — and up to 36 months for those with STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) degrees. Any abrupt end to the programme would hit India particularly hard, which is now the largest sender of students to the US after China.

Bill to scrap post-study work permit may draw fire in US

MANU KAUSHIK
New Delhi, April 10

WITH THE US government reportedly preparing a Bill to terminate Optional Practical Training (OPT) programme, India's study-abroad platforms remain unconvinced that it will succeed. They argue that the legislation would be detrimental not only to students but also to the US higher education sector, and expect significant pushback from universities and industry alike.

"Any legislation like this will reduce the number of students going to the US, in addition to having an impact on the quality of students that the US universities will attract," said Karunn Kandoi, founder and CEO of Vidya Education.

Experts stated that the bill is still in its early stages and is largely driven by a handful of advocacy groups. "If implemented, the Bill will severely impact nearly 4,000 universities in the US who are dependent on foreign students to fill their seats. Over the past few years, the enrolments of local students in US universities has gone down drastically due to declining value of degree programmes. This has increased their dependence on international students. The universities will likely oppose this Bill, and hence, we don't see any near-term implications," said Saif Iqbal, vice president at ApplyBoard.

OPT, which is tied to the F-1 student visa, allows international graduates to work in the US for up to 12 months — and up to 36 months for those with STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) degrees. Any abrupt end to the programme would hit India particularly hard, which is now the largest sender of students to the US after China.

IN FY25, CONSIGNMENTS WORTH ₹3,446.66 CRORE ENTERED PETRAPOLE PORT

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, April 10

BEFORE INDIA TERMINATED the trans-shipment facility for Bangladesh's export cargo, trucks and consignments saw a sharp uptick at Petrapole, the nation's largest land port, data shows.

New Delhi halted trans-shipment facilities for the neighbouring country on April 8, days after Bangladesh chief adviser Muhammad Yunus advocated the extension of the Chinese economy around the strategically important North-east India region.

India first allowed trans-shipment of export cargo from Bangladesh to third countries using Indian Land Customs Stations and subsequently Indian ports and airports on June 29, 2020.

According to sources in the Petrapole Land Port's customs department, in FY24, 3,373 trucks with trans-shipment

INCREASING TENSIONS

■ India halted trans-shipment facilities for Bangladesh on April 8

■ Petrapole is the largest land port in South Asia ■ It is situated on the Indo-Bangladesh border, 80 km from Kolkata

■ India had allowed trans-shipment of Bangladesh's cargo to third countries

■ In FY24, 3,373 trucks with trans-shipment cargo entered Petrapole

■ These consignments valued at ₹2,357.27 cr

■ In FY24, Petrapole recorded trade worth ₹30,42,092 cr

■ This was first allowed in June 2020

commodities or export cargo entered Petrapole from Bangladesh, with 4,733 consignments valued at ₹2,357.27 crore.

In FY25, 4,686 trucks (a 39% increase) with trans-shipment commodities entered Petrapole with 7,772 consignments valued at ₹3,446.66 crore.

"The facility was extended by our country to Bangladesh in 2020, but it saw little response that year and in 2021 and 2022. In 2023, though, transshipment consignments arrived in good numbers, and there was a sharp increase thereon. Primarily, ready-made garments came to us as commodities and are then flown to European countries like Spain. The rush of consignments is seen before the European festive season, including Christmas," said a senior Customs official at Petrapole. Officials explained that trucks from

Bangladesh first carry the consignments to Petrapole, where they are checked by land port and customs authorities. Indian trucks then take them to Kolkata or Delhi airports.

"Every day, 150-200 trucks enter from Bangladesh, of which around 15-20 carry transshipment commodities. From India, around 400 trucks go to the Bangladesh side. Ever since we received the notification, no transshipment consignments are being allowed. However, normal import-export truck movement as well as passenger movement between the two countries continues," said Kartik Chakraborty, secretary, Petrapole Clearing Agents' Staff Welfare Association.

"Four trucks stationed on the Bangladesh side (Benapole land port) returned to the country yesterday. Most transshipment consignments from Petrapole used to go to Kolkata airport and then to foreign countries, either directly or via Delhi airport. This is bad news for exporters of Bangladesh, mainly garment exporters. It was cheaper and easier to send through India. Indian truck owners that used to carry the consignments from Petrapole to Kolkata or Delhi airports will suffer losses too. So will labourers who unload and load the consignments in Petrapole," Sajedur Rehman, secretary of the clearing agents staff association in Benapole, Bangladesh, said.

Priyansh's clear-cut batting ethos: Watch the ball & hit it

SANDIP G
New Delhi, April 10

WITH A WITTY one-liner, uttered with an expressionless face, Punjab Kings' Priyansh Arya, reveals his batting ethos: "Attacking batsmen hamesha out hote to woh bahu ganda hi lagta hain."

He was not talking about the aesthetics of six-hitting, but his immunity to the criticisms that blow his way when the attacking strokes he lives by nails his end too.

He clarifies: "Not just me, look at every attacking batsman. It's part of the game, and I don't think about failures, or whether this shot could get me out or not, when I am batting. I just watch the ball, and look to hit it," he says.

His thoughts, like his batting, have an irreducible simplicity. He only sees wide open spaces on the field, and a hard ball that will fly off the blade. So the first-ball duck against Rajasthan Royals didn't inhibit him from hitting a first-ball six against Chennai Super Kings. Even the most enthusiastic IPL greenhorn would have exercised restraint the second time around. But why shouldn't he, when he is bursting with his six-hitting self-belief?

He remembers a chat with Ricky Ponting in the nets the day after Jofra Archer's corker had dishevelled his stumps. "He asked me what I would do if I got a similar ball the next game. I told him I would try to hit the ball for a six. And he told me it is not a problem and that anyone could get out first ball in the first ball of the game," he says. The reassurance of Shreyas Iyer, the captain, that he would open in all 14 games raised his morale further.

But few though would imagine, let alone hit, the first ball of the next game for a six. He did, slapping the widish ball over point without fuss, with a brisk, anti-clockwise tilt of his wrists, from the left-handed Khaleel Ahmed. A catch, from a leading edge, was spilled next ball. But Priyansh batted as though nothing had happened. "It didn't weigh in my mind, everybody drops catches. We dropped plenty too," he says. He brushed the reprieve aside with another

swamping six the same over.

Beneath the outwardly soft-edged exterior, though, is an intelligent schemer. When Ravi Ashwin, with a wealth of 765 international wickets, marked his run-up, from around the stumps, he immediately second-guessed the masterful spinner's designs. "I figured out what he was trying to do, bowl into my leg and cramp me. So I decided to sweep him, and it is exactly how he bowled," he says. And it was exactly how he greeted his first ball. By now, he was reading Ashwin's mind like a psychoanalyst. He waited on the back foot for him to err and slugged him overwide long-off.

Every fifth ball he has faced this IPL has landed beyond the fence (15 sixes off 75 balls). He does so with a note-perfect bat-swing, which makes up for his lack of Chris Gayle-like shoulders or the forearms of Sanath Jayasuriya or the wings-span of Matthew Hayden. But he dismisses the media-spun portrait of him as a natural six-hitter.

"It is not true that someone is a born six-hitter. It is something that you get with maturity and exposure. When I started, I was a timid boy. But I became bolder after I began to play more frequently," he says.

He could come atypically soft-spoken for a cricketer from Delhi, but he doesn't take refuge in platitudes. He could be playfully blunt too. Asked about the "specifics" of Ponting's counsel to him, he faked innocence. "I frankly don't remember what he told me. I would remember it only when I am at the nets or batting in the nets," he says. As if to assert his innocence, he repeats, "Sach mein sir, sach mein yaad nahin hain."

IN FY25, CONSIGNMENTS WORTH ₹3,446.66 CRORE ENTERED PETRAPOLE PORT

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, April 10

BEFORE INDIATERMINATED the trans-shipment facility for Bangladesh's export cargo, trucks and consignments saw a sharp uptick at Petrapole, the nation's largest land port, data shows.

New Delhi halted trans-shipment facilities for the neighbouring country on April 8, days after Bangladesh chief adviser Muhammad Yunus advocated the extension of the Chinese economy around the strategically important North-east India region.

India first allowed trans-shipment of export cargo from Bangladesh to third countries using Indian Land Customs Stations and subsequently Indian ports and airports on June 29, 2020.

According to sources in the Petrapole Land Port's customs department, in FY24, 3,373 trucks with trans-shipment

INCREASING TENSIONS

■ India halted trans-shipment facilities for Bangladesh on April 8

■ Petrapole is the largest land port in South Asia ■ It is situated on the Indo-Bangladesh border, 80 km from Kolkata

■ India had allowed trans-shipment of Bangladesh's cargo to third countries

■ In FY24, 3,373 trucks with trans-shipment cargo entered Petrapole

■ These consignments valued at ₹2,357.27 cr

■ In FY24, Petrapole recorded trade worth ₹30,42,092 cr

commodities or export cargo entered Petrapole from Bangladesh, with 4,733 consignments valued at ₹2,357.27 crore.

In FY25, 4,686 trucks (a 39% increase) with trans-shipment commodities entered Petrapole with 7,772 consignments valued at ₹3,446.66 crore.

"The facility was extended by our country to Bangladesh in 2020, but it saw little response that year and in 2021 and 2022. In 2023, though, transshipment consignments arrived in good numbers, and there was a sharp increase thereon. Primarily, ready-made garments come to us as commodities and are then flown to European countries like Spain. The rush of consignments is seen before the European festive season, including Christmas," said a senior Customs official at Petrapole. Officials explained that trucks from

Bangladesh first carry the consignments to Petrapole, where they are checked by land port and customs authorities. Indian trucks then take them to Kolkata or Delhi airports.

"Every day, 150-200 trucks enter from Bangladesh, of which around 15-20 carry transshipment commodities. From India, around 400 trucks go to the Bangladesh side. Ever since we received the notification, no transshipment consignments are being allowed. However, normal import-export truck movement as well as passenger movement between the two countries continues," said Kartik Chakraborty, secretary, Petrapole Clearing Agents' Staff Welfare Association.

"Four trucks stationed on the Bangladesh side (Benapole land port) returned to the country yesterday. Most transshipment consignments from Petrapole used to go to Kolkata airport and then to foreign countries, either directly or via Delhi airport. This is bad news for exporters of Bangladesh, mainly garment exporters. It was cheaper and easier to send through India. Indian truck owners that used to carry the consignments from Petrapole to Kolkata or Delhi airports will suffer losses too. So will labourers who unload and load the consignments in Petrapole," Sajedur Rehman, secretary of the clearing agents' association in Benapole, Bangladesh, said.

Priyansh's clear-cut batting ethos: Watch the ball & hit it

SANDIP G
New Delhi, April 10

WITH A WITTY one-liner, uttered with an expressionless face, Punjab Kings' Priyansh Arya, reveals his batting ethos: "Attacking batsmen hamesha out hote to woh bahur ganda hi lagta hain."

He was not talking about the aesthetics of six-hitting, but his immunity to the criticisms that blow his way when the attacking strokes he lives by nails his end too.

He clarifies: "Not just me, look at every attacking batsman. It's part of the game, and I don't think about failures, or whether this shot could get me out or not, when I am batting. I just watch the ball, and look to hit it," he says. His thoughts, like his batting, have an irreducible simplicity. He only sees wide open spaces on the field, and a hard ball that will fly off the blade.

So the first-ball duck against Rajasthan Royals didn't inhibit him from hitting a first-ball six against Chennai Super Kings. Even the most enthusiastic IPL greenhorn would have exercised restraint the second time around. But why shouldn't he, when he is bursting with his six-hitting self-belief?

He remembers a chat with Ricky Ponting in the nets the day after Jofra Archer's corker had dishevelled his stumps. "He asked me what I would do if I got a similar ball the next game. I told him I would try to hit the ball for a six. And he told me it is not a problem and that anyone could get out first ball in the first ball of the game," he says. The reassurance of Shreyas Iyer, the captain, that he would open in all 14 games raised his morale further.

But few though would imagine, let alone hit, the first ball of the next game for a six. He did, slapping the wideish ball over point without fuss, with a brisk, anti-clockwise tilt of his wrists, from the left-handed Khaleel Ahmed. A catch, from a leading edge, was spilled next ball. But Priyansh batted as though nothing had happened. "It didn't weigh in my mind, everybody drops catches. We dropped plenty too," he says. He brushed the reprieve aside with another

swamping six the same over.

Beneath the outwardly soft-edged exterior, though, is an intelligent schemer. When Ravi Ashwin, with a wealth of 765 international wickets, marked his run-up, from around the stumps, he immediately second-guessed the masterful spinner's designs. "I figured out what he was trying to do, bowl into my leg and cramp me. So I decided to sweep him, and it is exactly how he bowled," he says. And it was exactly how he greeted his first ball. By now, he was reading Ashwin's mind like a psychoanalyst. He waited on the back foot for him to err and slugged him over wide long-off.

Every fifth ball he has faced this IPL has landed beyond the fence (15 sixes off 75 balls). He does so with a note-perfect bat-swing, which makes up for his lack of Chris Gayle-like shoulders or the forearms of Sanath Jayasuriya or the wings-span of Matthew Hayden. But he dismisses the media-spun portrait of him as a natural six-hitter.

"It is not true that someone is a born six-hitter. It is something that you get with maturity and exposure. When I started, I was a timid boy. But I became bolder after I began to play more frequently," he says.

He could come atypically soft-spoken for a cricketer from Delhi, but he doesn't take refuge in platitudes. He could be playfully blunt too. Asked about the "specifics" of Ponting's counsel to him, he faked innocence. "I frankly don't remember what he told me. I would remember it only when I am at the nets or batting in the nets," he says. As if to assert his innocence, he repeats, "Sach mein sir, sach mein yaad nahin hain."

Bill to scrap post-study work permit may draw fire in US

MANU KAUSHIK
New Delhi, April 10

WITH THE US government reportedly preparing a Bill to terminate Optional Practical Training (OPT) programme, India's study-abroad platforms remain unconvinced that it will succeed. They argue that the legislation would be detrimental not only to students but also to the US higher-education sector, and expect significant pushback from universities and industry alike.

"Any legislation like this will reduce the number of students going to the US, in addition to having an impact on the quality of students that the US universities will attract," said Karunn Kandoi, founder and CEO of Vidya Education.

Experts stated that the bill is still in its early stages and is largely driven by a handful of advocacy groups. "If implemented, the Bill will severely impact nearly 4,000 universities in the US who are dependent on foreign students to fill their seats. Over the past few years, the enrolments of local students in US universities has gone down drastically due to declining value of degree programmes. This has increased their dependence on international students. The universities will likely oppose this Bill, and hence, we don't see any near-term implications," said Saif Iqbal, vice president at ApplyBoard.

OPT, which is tied to the F-1 student visa, allows international graduates to work in the US for up to 12 months — and up to 36 months for those with STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) degrees. Any abrupt end to the programme would hit India particularly hard, which is now the largest sender of students to the US after China.

IN FY25, CONSIGNMENTS WORTH ₹3,446.66 CRORE ENTERED PETRAPOLE PORT

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, April 10

BEFORE INDIA TERMINATED the trans-shipment facility for Bangladesh's export cargo, trucks and consignments saw a sharp uptick at Petrapole, the nation's largest land port, data shows.

New Delhi halted trans-shipment facilities for the neighbouring country on April 8, days after Bangladesh chief adviser Muhammad Yunus advocated the extension of the Chinese economy around the strategically important North-east India region.

India first allowed trans-shipment of export cargo from Bangladesh to third countries using Indian Land Customs Stations and subsequently Indian ports and airports on June 29, 2020.

According to sources in the Petrapole Land Port's customs department, in FY24, 3,373 trucks with trans-shipment

INCREASING TENSIONS

■ India halted trans-shipment facilities for Bangladesh on April 8

■ Petrapole is the largest land port in South Asia ■ It is situated on the Indo-Bangladesh border, 80 km from Kolkata

■ India had allowed trans-shipment of Bangladesh's cargo to third countries

commodities or export cargo entered Petrapole from Bangladesh, with 4,733 consignments valued at ₹2,357.27 crore.

In FY25, 4,686 trucks (a 39% increase) with trans-shipment commodities entered Petrapole with 7,772 consignments valued at ₹3,446.66 crore.

"The facility was extended by our country to Bangladesh in 2020, but it saw little response that year and in 2021 and 2022. In 2023, though, transshipment consignments arrived in good numbers, and there was a sharp increase thereon. Primarily, ready-made garments come to us as commodities and are then flown to European countries like Spain. The rush of consignments is seen before the European festive season, including Christmas," said a senior Customs official at Petrapole. Officials explained that trucks from

Bangladesh first carry the consignments to Petrapole, where they are checked by land port and customs authorities. Indian trucks then take them to Kolkata or Delhi airports.

"Every day, 150-200 trucks enter from Bangladesh, of which around 15-20 carry transshipment commodities. From India, around 400 trucks go to the Bangladesh side. Ever since we received the notification, no transshipment consignments are being allowed. However, normal import-export truck movement as well as passenger movement between the two countries continues," said Kartik Chakraborty, secretary, Petrapole Clearing Agents' Staff Welfare Association.

"Four trucks stationed on the Bangladesh side (Benapole land port) returned to the country yesterday. Most transshipment consignments from Petrapole used to go to Kolkata airport and then to foreign countries, either directly or via Delhi airport. This is bad news for exporters of Bangladesh, mainly garment exporters. It was cheaper and easier to send through India. Indian truck owners that used to carry the consignments from Petrapole to Kolkata or Delhi airports will suffer losses too. So will labourers who unload and load the consignments in Petrapole," Sajedur Rehman, secretary of the clearing agents staff association in Benapole, Bangladesh, said.

Priyansh's clear-cut batting ethos: Watch the ball & hit it

SANDIP G
New Delhi, April 10

WITH A WITTY one-liner, uttered with an expressionless face, Punjab Kings' Priyansh Arya, reveals his batting ethos: "Attacking batsmen hamesha out hote to woh bahut ganda hi lagta hain."

He was not talking about the aesthetics of six-hitting, but his immunity to the criticisms that blow his way when the attacking strokes he lives by nails his end too.

He clarifies: "Not just me, look at every attacking batsman. It's part of the game, and I don't think about failures, or whether this shot could get me out or not, when I am batting. I just watch the ball, and look to hit it," he says. His thoughts, like his batting, have an irreducible simplicity. He only sees wide open spaces on the field, and a hard ball that will fly off the blade.

So the first-ball duck against Rajasthan Royals didn't inhibit him from hitting a first-ball six against Chennai Super Kings. Even the most enthusiastic IPL greenhorn would have exercised restraint the second time around. But why shouldn't he, when he is bursting with his six-hitting self-belief?

He remembers a chat with Ricky Ponting in the nets the day after Jofra Archer's corker had dishevelled his stumps. "He asked me what I would do if I get a similar ball the next game. I told him I would try to hit the ball for a six. And he told me it is not a problem and that anyone could get out first ball in the first ball of the game," he says. The reassurance of Shreyas Iyer, the captain, that he would open in all 14 games raised his morale further.

But few though would imagine, let alone hit, the first ball of the next game for a six. He did, slapping the wideish ball over point without fuss, with a brisk, anti-clockwise tilt of his wrists, from the left-handed Khaleel Ahmed. A catch, from a leading edge, was spilled next ball. But Priyansh batted as though nothing had happened. "It didn't weigh in my mind, everybody drops catches. We dropped plenty too," he says. He brushed the reprieve aside with another

swamping six the same over.

Beneath the outwardly soft-edged exterior, though, is an intelligent schemer. When Ravi Ashwin, with a wealth of 765 international wickets, marked his run-up, from around the stumps, he immediately second-guessed the masterful spinner's designs. "I figured out what he was trying to do, bowl into my legs and cramp me. So I decided to sweep him, and it is exactly how he bowled," he says. And it was exactly how he greeted his first ball. By now, he was reading Ashwin's mind like a psychoanalyst. He waited on the back foot for him to err and slugged him over wide long-off.

Every fifth ball he has faced this IPL has landed beyond the fence (15 sixes off 75 balls). He does so with a note-perfect bat-swing, which makes up for his lack of Chris Gayle-like shoulders or the forearms of Sanath Jayasuriya or the wingspan of Matthew Hayden. But he dismisses the media-spun portrait of him as a natural six-hitter.

"It is not true that someone is a born six-hitter. It is something that you get with maturity and exposure. When I started, I was a timid boy. But I became bolder after I began to play more frequently," he says.

He could come atypically soft-spoken for a cricketer from Delhi, but he doesn't take refuge in platitudes. He could be playfully blunt too. Asked about the "specifics" of Ponting's counsel to him, he faked innocence. "I frankly don't remember what he told me. I would remember it only when I am at the nets or batting in the nets," he says. As if to assert his innocence, he repeats, "Sach mein sir, sach mein yaad nahin hain."

Bill to scrap post-study work permit may draw fire in US

MANU KAUSHIK
New Delhi, April 10

WITH THE US government reportedly preparing a Bill to terminate Optional Practical Training (OPT) programme, India's study-abroad platforms remain unconvinced that it will succeed. They argue that the legislation would be detrimental not only to students but also to the US higher-education sector, and expect significant pushback from universities and industrial alike.

"Any legislation like this will reduce the number of students going to the US, in addition to having an impact on the quality of students that the US universities will attract," said Karunn Kandoi, founder and CEO of Vidysea Education.

Experts stated that the bill is still in its early stages and is largely driven by a handful of advocacy groups. "If implemented, the Bill will severely impact nearly 4,000 universities in the US who are dependent on foreign students to fill their seats. Over the past few years, the enrolments of local students in US universities has gone down drastically due to declining value of degree programmes. This has increased their dependence on international students. The universities will likely oppose this Bill, and hence, we don't see any near-term implications," said Saif Iqbal, vice president at ApplyBoard.

OPT, which is tied to the F-1 student visa, allows international graduates to work in the US for up to 12 months — and up to 36 months for those with STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) degrees. Any abrupt end to the programme would hit India particularly hard, which is now the largest sender of students to the US after China.

swamping six the same over.

Beneath the outwardly soft-edged exterior, though, is an intelligent schemer. When Ravi Ashwin, with a wealth of 765 international wickets, marked his run-up, from around the stumps, he immediately second-guessed the masterful spinner's designs. "I figured out what he was trying to do, bowl into my legs and cramp me. So I decided to sweep him, and it is exactly how he bowled," he says. And it was exactly how he greeted his first ball. By now, he was reading Ashwin's mind like a psychoanalyst. He waited on the back foot for him to err and slugged him over wide long-off.

Every fifth ball he has faced this IPL has landed beyond the fence (15 sixes off 75 balls). He does so with a note-perfect bat-swing, which makes up for his lack of Chris Gayle-like shoulders or the forearms of Sanath Jayasuriya or the wings-span of Matthew Hayden. But he dismisses the media-spun portrait of him as a natural six-hitter.

"It is not true that someone is a born six-hitter. It is something that you get with maturity and exposure. When I started, I was a timid boy. But I became bolder after I began to play more frequently," he says.

He could come atypically soft-spoken for a cricketer from Delhi, but he doesn't take refuge in platitudes. He could be playfully blunt too. Asked about the "specifics" of Ponting's counsel to him, he faked innocence. "I frankly don't remember what he told me. I would remember it only when I am at the nets or batting in the nets," he says. As if to assert his innocence, he repeats, "Sach mein sir, sach mein yaad nahin hain."

Bill to scrap post-study work permit may draw fire in US

MANU KAUSHIK
New Delhi, April 10

WITH THE US government reportedly preparing a Bill to terminate Optional Practical Training (OPT) programme, India's study-abroad platforms remain unconvinced that it will succeed. They argue that the legislation would be detrimental not only to students but also to the US higher-education sector, and expect significant pushback from universities and industry alike.

"Any legislation like this will reduce the number of students going to the US, in addition to having an impact on the quality of students that the US universities will attract," said Karunn Kandoi, founder and CEO of Vidyea Education.

Experts stated that the bill is still in its early stages and is largely driven by a handful of advocacy groups. "If implemented, the Bill will severely impact nearly 4,000 universities in the US who are dependent on foreign students to fill their seats. Over the past few years, the enrolments of local students in US universities has gone down drastically due to declining value of degree programmes. This has increased their dependence on international students. The universities will likely oppose this Bill, and hence, we don't see any near-term implications," said Saif Iqbal, vice president at ApplyBoard.

OPT, which is tied to the F-1 student visa, allows international graduates to work in the US for up to 12 months — and up to 36 months for those with STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) degrees. Any abrupt end to the programme would hit India particularly hard, which is now the largest sender of students to the US after China.

IN FY25, CONSIGNMENTS WORTH ₹3,446.66 CRORE ENTERED PETRAPOLE PORT

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, April 10

BEFORE INDIA TERMINATED the trans-shipment facility for Bangladesh's export cargo, trucks and consignments saw a sharp uptick at Petrapole, the nation's largest land port, data shows.

New Delhi halted trans-shipment facilities for the neighbouring country on April 8, days after Bangladesh chief adviser Muhammad Yunus advocated the extension of the Chinese economy around the strategically important North-east India region.

India first allowed trans-shipment of export cargo from Bangladesh to third countries using Indian Land Customs Stations and subsequently Indian ports and airports on June 29, 2020.

According to sources in the Petrapole Land Port's customs department, in FY24, 3,373 trucks with trans-shipment

INCREASING TENSIONS

■ India halted trans-shipment facilities for Bangladesh on April 8

■ Petrapole is the largest land port in South Asia ■ It is situated on the Indo-Bangladesh border, 80 km from Kolkata

■ India had allowed trans-shipment of Bangladesh's cargo to third countries

■ In FY24, 3,373 trucks with trans-shipment cargo entered Petrapole

■ These consignments valued at ₹2,357.27 cr

■ In FY24, Petrapole recorded trade worth ₹30,42,092 cr

commodities or export cargo entered Petrapole from Bangladesh, with 4,733 consignments valued at ₹2,357.27 crore.

In FY25, 4,686 trucks (a 39% increase) with trans-shipment commodities entered Petrapole with 7,772 consignments valued at ₹3,446.66 crore.

"The facility was extended by our country to Bangladesh in 2020, but it saw little response that year and in 2021 and 2022. In 2023, though, transshipment consignments arrived in good numbers, and there was a sharp increase thereon. Primarily, ready-made garments come to us as commodities and are then flown to European countries like Spain. The rush of consignments is seen before the European festive season, including Christmas," said a senior Customs official at Petrapole. Officials explained that trucks from

Bangladesh first carry the consignments to Petrapole, where they are checked by land port and customs authorities. Indian trucks then take them to Kolkata or Delhi airports.

"Every day, 150-200 trucks enter from Bangladesh, of which around 15-20 carry transshipment commodities. From India, around 400 trucks go to the Bangladesh side. Ever since we received the notification, no transshipment consignments are being allowed. However, normal import-export truck movement as well as passenger movement between the two countries continues," said Kartik Chakraborty, secretary, Petrapole Clearing Agents' Staff Welfare Association.

"Four trucks stationed on the Bangladesh side (Benapole land port) returned to the country yesterday. Most transshipment consignments from Petrapole used to go to Kolkata airport and then to foreign countries, either directly or via Delhi airport. This is bad news for exporters of Bangladesh, mainly garment exporters. It was cheaper and easier to send through India. Indian truck owners that used to carry the consignments from Petrapole to Kolkata or Delhi airports will suffer losses too. So will labourers who unload and load the consignments in Petrapole," Sajedur Rehman, secretary of the clearing agents staff association in Benapole, Bangladesh, said.

Priyansh's clear-cut batting ethos: Watch the ball & hit it

SANDIP G
New Delhi, April 10

WITH A WITTY one-liner, uttered with an expressionless face, Punjab Kings' Priyansh Arya, reveals his batting ethos: "Attacking batsmen hamesha out hote to woh bahur ganda hi lagta hain."

He was not talking about the aesthetics of six-hitting, but his immunity to the criticisms that blow his way when the attacking strokes he lives by nails his end too.

He clarifies: "Not just me, look at every attacking batsman. It's part of the game, and I don't think about failures, or whether this shot could get me out or not, when I am batting. I just watch the ball, and look to hit it," he says. His thoughts, like his batting, have an irreducible simplicity. He only sees wide open spaces on the field, and a hard ball that will fly off the blade.

So the first-ball duck against Rajasthan Royals didn't inhibit him from hitting a first-ball six against Chennai Super Kings. Even the most enthusiastic IPL greenhorn would have exercised restraint the second time around. But why shouldn't he, when he is bursting with his six-hitting self-belief?

He remembers a chat with Ricky Ponting in the nets the day after Jofra Archer's corker had dishevelled his stumps. "He asked me what I would do if I get a similar ball the next game. I told him I would try to hit the ball for a six. And he told me it is not a problem and that anyone could get out first ball in the first ball of the game," he says. The reassurance of Shreyas Iyer, the captain, that he would open in all 14 games raised his morale further.

But few though would imagine, let alone hit, the first ball of the next game for a six. He did, slapping the wideish ball over point without fuss, with a brisk, anti-clockwise tilt of his wrists, from the left-handed Khaleel Ahmed. A catch, from a leading edge, was spilled next ball. But Priyansh batted as though nothing had happened. "It didn't weigh in my mind, everybody drops catches. We dropped plenty too," he says. He brushed the reprieve aside with another

swamping six the same over.

Beneath the outwardly soft-edged exterior, though, is an intelligent schemer. When Ravi Ashwin, with a wealth of 765 international wickets, marked his run-up, from around the stumps, he immediately second-guessed the masterful spinner's designs. "I figured out what he was trying to do, bowl into my leg and cramp me. So I decided to sweep him, and it is exactly how he bowled," he says. And it was exactly how he greeted his first ball. By now, he was reading Ashwin's mind like a psychoanalyst. He waited on the back foot for him to err and slugged him over wide long-off.

He does so with a note-perfect bat-swing, which makes up for his lack of Chris Gayle-like shoulders or the forearms of Sanath Jayasuriya or the wings-span of Matthew Hayden. But he dismisses the media-spun portrait of him as a natural six-hitter.

"It is not true that someone is a born six-hitter. It is something that you get with maturity and exposure. When I started, I was a timid boy. But I became bolder after I began to play more frequently," he says.

He could come atypically soft-spoken for a cricketer from Delhi, but he doesn't take refuge in platitudes. He could be playfully blunt too. Asked about the "specifics" of Ponting's counsel to him, he faked innocence. "I frankly don't remember what he told me. I would remember it only when I am at the nets or batting in the nets," he says. As if to assert his innocence, he repeats, "Sach mein sir, sach mein yaad nahin hain."

IN FY25, CONSIGNMENTS WORTH ₹3,446.66 CRORE ENTERED PETRAPOLE PORT

Before India halted trans-shipment, Bangla border port saw sharp uptick

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, April 10

BEFORE INDIA TERMINATED the trans-shipment facility for Bangladesh's export cargo, trucks and consignments saw a sharp uptick at Petrapole, the nation's largest land port, data shows.

New Delhi halted trans-shipment facilities for the neighbouring country on April 8, days after Bangladesh chief adviser Muhammad Yunus advocated the extension of the Chinese economy around the strategically important North-east India region.

India first allowed trans-shipment of export cargo from Bangladesh to third countries using Indian Land Customs Stations and subsequently Indian ports and airports on June 29, 2020.

According to sources in the Petrapole Land Port's customs department, in FY24, 3,373 trucks with trans-shipment

INCREASING TENSIONS

■ India halted trans-shipment facilities for Bangladesh on April 8

■ Petrapole is the largest land port in South Asia ■ It is situated on the Indo-Bangladesh border, 80 km from Kolkata

■ India had allowed trans-shipment of Bangladesh's cargo to third countries

■ In FY24, 3,373 trucks with trans-shipment cargo entered Petrapole

commodities or export cargo entered Petrapole from Bangladesh, with 4,733 consignments valued at ₹2,357.27 crore.

In FY25, 4,686 trucks (a 39% increase) with trans-shipment commodities entered Petrapole with 7,772 consignments valued at ₹3,446.66 crore.

"The facility was extended by our country to Bangladesh in 2020, but it saw little response that year and in 2021 and 2022. In 2023, though, transshipment consignments arrived in good numbers, and there was a sharp increase thereon. Primarily, ready-made garments come to us as commodities and are then flown to European countries like Spain. The rush of consignments is seen before the European festive season, including Christmas," said a senior Customs official at Petrapole. Officials explained that trucks from

Bangladesh first carry the consignments to Petrapole, where they are checked by land port and customs authorities. Indian trucks then take them to Kolkata or Delhi airports.

"Every day, 150-200 trucks enter from Bangladesh, of which around 15-20 carry transshipment commodities. From India, around 400 trucks go to the Bangladesh side. Ever since we received the notification, no transshipment consignments are being allowed. However, normal import-export truck movement as well as passenger movement between the two countries continues," said Kartik Chakraborty, secretary, Petrapole Clearing Agents' Staff Welfare Association.

"Four trucks stationed on the Bangladesh side (Benapole land port) returned to the country yesterday. Most transshipment consignments from Petrapole used to go to Kolkata airport and then to foreign countries, either directly or via Delhi airport. This is bad news for exporters of Bangladesh, mainly garment exporters. It was cheaper and easier to send through India. Indian truck owners that used to carry the consignments from Petrapole to Kolkata or Delhi airports will suffer losses too. So will labourers who unload and load the consignments in Petrapole," Sajedur Rehman, secretary of the clearing agents staff association in Benapole, Bangladesh, said.

SANDIP G
New Delhi, April 10

WITH A WITTY one-liner, uttered with an expressionless face, Punjab Kings' Priyansh Arya, reveals his batting ethos: "Attacking batsmen hamesha out hote to woh bahu ganda hi lagta hain."

He was not talking about the aesthetics of six-hitting, but his immunity to the criticisms that blow his way when the attacking strokes he lives by nail his end too.

He clarifies: "Not just me, look at every attacking batsman. It's part of the game, and I don't think about failures, or whether this shot could get me out or not, when I am batting. I just watch the ball, and look to hit it," he says.

His thoughts, like his batting, have an irreducible simplicity. He only sees wide open spaces on the field, and a hard ball that will fly off the blade. So the first-ball duck against Rajasthan Royals didn't inhibit him from hitting a first-ball six against Chennai Super Kings. Even the most enthusiastic IPL greenhorn would have exercised restraint the second time around. But why shouldn't he, when he is bursting with his six-hitting self-belief?

He remembers a chat with Ricky Ponting in the nets the day after Jofra Archer's corker had dishevelled his stumps. "He asked me what I would do if I got a similar ball the next game. I told him I would try to hit the ball for a six. And he told me it is not a problem and that anyone could get out first ball in the first ball of the game," he says. The reassurance of Shreyas Iyer, the captain, that he would open in all 14 games raised his morale further.

But few though would imagine, let alone hit, the first ball of the next game for a six. He did, slapping the widish ball over point without fuss, with a brisk, anti-clockwise tilt of his wrists, from the left-handed Khaleel Ahmed. A catch, from a leading edge, was spilled next ball. But Priyansh batted as though nothing had happened. "It didn't weigh in my mind, everybody drops catches. We dropped plenty too," he says. He brushed the reprieve aside with another

swamping six the same over.

Beneath the outwardly soft-edged exterior, though, is an intelligent schemer. When Ravi Ashwin, with a wealth of 765 international wickets, marked his run-up, from around the stumps, he immediately second-guessed the masterful spinner's designs. "I figured out what he was trying to do, bowl into my leg and cramp me. So I decided to sweep him, and it is exactly how he bowled," he says. And it was exactly how he greeted his first ball. By now, he was reading Ashwin's mind like a psychoanalyst. He waited on the back foot for him to err and slugged him overwide long-off.

Every fifth ball he has faced this IPL has landed beyond the fence (15 sixes off 75 balls). He does so with a note-perfect bat-swing, which makes up for his lack of Chris Gayle-like shoulders or the forearms of Sanath Jayasuriya or the wings-span of Matthew Hayden. But he dismisses the media-spun portrait of him as a natural six-hitter.

"It is not true that someone is a born six-hitter. It is something that you get with maturity and exposure. When I started, I was a timid boy. But I became bolder after I began to play more frequently," he says.

He could come atypically soft-spoken for a cricketer from Delhi, but he doesn't take refuge in platitudes. He could be playfully blunt too. Asked about the "specifics" of Ponting's counsel to him, he faked innocence. "I frankly don't remember what he told me. I would remember it only when I am at the nets or batting in the nets," he says. As if to assert his innocence, he repeats, "Sach mein sir, sach mein yaad nahin hain."

Bill to scrap post-study work permit may draw fire in US

MANU KAUSHIK
New Delhi, April 10

WITH THE US government reportedly preparing a Bill to terminate Optional Practical Training (OPT) programme, India's study-abroad platforms remain unconvinced that it will succeed. They argue that the legislation would be detrimental not only to students but also to the US higher education sector, and expect significant pushback from universities and industry alike.

"Any legislation like this will reduce the number of students going to the US, in addition to having an impact on the quality of students that the US universities will attract," said Karunn Kandoi, founder and CEO of Vidya Education.

Experts stated that the bill is still in its early stages and is largely driven by a handful of advocacy groups. "If implemented, the Bill will severely impact nearly 4,000 universities in the US who are dependent on foreign students to fill their seats. Over the past few years, the enrolments of local students in US universities has gone down drastically due to declining value of degree programmes. This has increased their dependence on international students. The universities will likely oppose this Bill, and hence, we don't see any near-term implications," said Saif Iqbal, vice president at ApplyBoard.

OPT, which is tied to the F-1 student visa, allows international graduates to work in the US for up to 12 months — and up to 36 months for those with STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) degrees. Any abrupt end to the programme would hit India particularly hard, which is now the largest sender of students to the US after China.

IN FY25, CONSIGNMENTS WORTH ₹3,446.66 CRORE ENTERED PETRAPOLE PORT

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, April 10

BEFORE INDIA TERMINATED the trans-shipment facility for Bangladesh's export cargo, trucks and consignments saw a sharp uptick at Petrapole, the nation's largest land port, data shows.

New Delhi halted trans-shipment facilities for the neighbouring country on April 8, days after Bangladesh chief adviser Muhammad Yunus advocated the extension of the Chinese economy around the strategically important North-east India region.

India first allowed trans-shipment of export cargo from Bangladesh to third countries using Indian Land Customs Stations and subsequently Indian ports and airports on June 29, 2020.

According to sources in the Petrapole Land Port's customs department, in FY24, 3,373 trucks with trans-shipment

commodities or export cargo entered Petrapole from Bangladesh, with 4,733 consignments valued at ₹2,357.27 crore.

In FY25, 4,686 trucks (a 39% increase) with trans-shipment commodities entered Petrapole with 7,772 consignments valued at ₹3,446.66 crore.

"The facility was extended by our country to Bangladesh in 2020, but it saw little response that year and in 2021 and 2022. In 2023, though, transshipment consignments arrived in good numbers, and there was a sharp increase thereon. Primarily, ready-made garments come to us as commodities and are then flown to European countries like Spain. The rush of consignments is seen before the European festive season, including Christmas," said a senior Customs official at Petrapole. Officials explained that trucks from

Bangladesh first carry the consignments to Petrapole, where they are checked by land port and customs authorities. Indian trucks then take them to Kolkata or Delhi airports.

"Every day, 150-200 trucks enter from Bangladesh, of which around 15-20 carry transshipment commodities. From India, around 400 trucks go to the Bangladesh side. Ever since we received the notification, no transshipment consignments are being allowed. However, normal import-export truck movement as well as passenger movement between the two countries continues," said Kartik Chakraborty, secretary, Petrapole Clearing Agents' Staff Welfare Association.

"Four trucks stationed on the Bangladesh side (Benapole land port) returned to the country yesterday. Most transshipment consignments from Petrapole used to go to Kolkata airport and then to foreign countries, either directly or via Delhi airport. This is bad news for exporters of Bangladesh, mainly garment exporters. It was cheaper and easier to send through India. Indian truck owners that used to carry the consignments from Petrapole to Kolkata or Delhi airports will suffer losses too. So will labourers who unload and load the consignments in Petrapole," Sajedur Rehman, secretary of the clearing agents staff association in Benapole, Bangladesh, said.

Priyansh's clear-cut batting ethos: Watch the ball & hit it

SANDIP G
New Delhi, April 10

WITH A WITTY one-liner, uttered with an expressionless face, Punjab Kings' Priyansh Arya, reveals his batting ethos: "Attacking batsmen hamesha out hote to woh bahur ganda hi lagta hain."

He was not talking about the aesthetics of six-hitting, but his immunity to the criticisms that blow his way when the attacking strokes he lives by nails his end too.

He clarifies: "Not just me, look at every attacking batsman. It's part of the game, and I don't think about failures, or whether this shot could get me out or not, when I am batting. I just watch the ball, and look to hit it," he says.

His thoughts, like his batting, have an irreducible simplicity. He only sees wide open spaces on the field, and a hard ball that will fly off the blade. So the first-ball duck against Rajasthan Royals didn't inhibit him from hitting a first-ball six against Chennai Super Kings. Even the most enthusiastic IPL greenhorn would have exercised restraint the second time around. But why shouldn't he, when he is bursting with his six-hitting self-belief?

He remembers a chat with Ricky Ponting in the nets the day after Jofra Archer's corks had dishevelled his stumps. "He asked me what I would do if I get a similar ball the next game. I told him I would try to hit the ball for a six. And he told me it is not a problem and that anyone could get out first ball in the first ball of the game," he says. The reassurance of

Shreyas Iyer, the captain, that he would open in all 14 games raised his morale further.

But few though would imagine, let alone hit, the first ball of the next game for a six. He did, slapping the wideish ball over point without fuss, with a brisk, anti-clockwise tilt of his wrists, from the left-handed Khaleel Ahmed. A catch, from a leading edge, was spilled next ball. But Priyansh batted as though nothing had happened. "It didn't weigh in my mind, everybody drops catches. We dropped plenty too," he says. He brushed the reprieve aside with another

swamping six the same over.

Beneath the outwardly soft-edged exterior, though, is an intelligent schemer. When Ravi Ashwin, with a wealth of 765 international wickets, marked his run-up, from around the stumps, he immediately second-guessed the masterful spinner's designs. "I figured out what he was trying to do, bowl into my leg and cramp me. So I decided to sweep him, and it is exactly how he bowled," he says. And it was exactly how he greeted his first ball. By now, he was reading Ashwin's mind like a psychoanalyst. He waited on the back foot for him to err and slugged him over wide long-off.

Every fifth ball he has faced this IPL has landed beyond the fence (15 sixes off 75 balls). He does so with a note-perfect bat-swing, which makes up for his lack of Chris Gayle-like shoulders or the forearms of Sanath Jayasuriya or the wings-span of Matthew Hayden. But he dismisses the media-spun portrait of him as a natural six-hitter.

"It is not true that someone is a born six-hitter. It is something that you get with maturity and exposure. When I started, I was a timid boy. But I became bolder after I began to play more frequently," he says.

He could come atypically soft-spoken for a cricketer from Delhi, but he doesn't take refuge in platitudes. He could be playfully blunt too. Asked about the "specifics" of Ponting's counsel to him, he faked innocence. "I frankly don't remember what he told me. I would remember it only when I am at the nets or batting in the nets," he says. As if to assert his innocence, he repeats, "Sach mein sir, sach mein yaad nahin hain."

Bill to scrap post-study work permit may draw fire in US

MANU KAUSHIK
New Delhi, April 10

WITH THE US government reportedly preparing a Bill to terminate Optional Practical Training (OPT) programme, India's study-abroad platforms remain unconvinced that it will succeed. They argue that the legislation would be detrimental not only to students but also to the US higher-education sector, and expect significant pushback from universities and industry alike.

"Any legislation like this will reduce the number of students going to the US, in addition to having an impact on the quality of students that the US universities will attract," said Karunn Kandoi, founder and CEO of Vidya Education.

Experts stated that the bill is still in its early stages and is largely driven by a handful of advocacy groups. "If implemented, the Bill will severely impact nearly 4,000 universities in the US who are dependent on foreign students to fill their seats. Over the past few years, the enrolments of local students in US universities has gone down drastically due to declining value of degree programmes. This has increased their dependence on international students. The universities will likely oppose this Bill, and hence, we don't see any near-term implications," said Saif Iqbal, vice president at ApplyBoard.

OPT, which is tied to the F-1 student visa, allows international graduates to work in the US for up to 12 months — and up to 36 months for those with STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) degrees. Any abrupt end to the programme would hit India particularly hard, which is now the largest sender of students to the US after China.

Priyansh's clear-cut batting ethos: Watch the ball & hit it

SANDIP G
New Delhi, April 10

WITH A WITTY one-liner, uttered with an expressionless face, Punjab Kings' Priyansh Arya, reveals his batting ethos: "Attacking batsmen hamesha out hote to woh bahur ganda hi lagta hain."

He was not talking about the aesthetics of six-hitting, but his immunity to the criticisms that blow his way when the attacking strokes he lives by nails his end too.

He clarifies: "Not just me, look at every attacking batsman. It's part of the game, and I don't think about failures, or whether this shot could get me out or not, when I am batting. I just watch the ball, and look to hit it," he says.

His thoughts, like his batting, have an irreducible simplicity. He only sees wide open spaces on the field, and a hard ball that will fly off the blade. So the first-ball duck against Rajasthan Royals didn't inhibit him from hitting a first-ball six against Chennai Super Kings. Even the most enthusiastic IPL greenhorn would have exercised restraint the second time around. But why shouldn't he, when he is bursting with his six-hitting self-belief?

He remembers a chat with Ricky Ponting in the nets the day after Jofra Archer's corker had dishevelled his stumps. "He asked me what I would do if I got a similar ball the next game. I told him I would try to hit the ball for a six. And he told me it is not a problem and that anyone could get out first ball in the first ball of the game," he says. The reassurance of Shreyas Iyer, the captain, that he would open in all 14 games raised his morale further.

But few though would imagine, let alone hit, the first ball of the next game for a six. He did, slapping the wideish ball over point without fuss, with a brisk, anti-clockwise tilt of his wrists, from the left-handed Khaleel Ahmed. A catch, from a leading edge, was spilled next ball. But Priyansh batted as though nothing had happened. "It didn't weigh in my mind, everybody drops catches. We dropped plenty too," he says. He brushed the reprieve aside with another

swamping six the same over.

Beneath the outwardly soft-edged exterior, though, is an intelligent schemer. When Ravi Ashwin, with a wealth of 765 international wickets, marked his run-up, from around the stumps, he immediately second-guessed the masterful spinner's designs. "I figured out what he was trying to do, bowl into my leg and cramp me. So I decided to sweep him, and it is exactly how he bowled," he says. And it was exactly how he greeted his first ball. By now, he was reading Ashwin's mind like a psychoanalyst. He waited on the back foot for him to err and slugged him over wide long-off.

Every fifth ball he has faced this IPL has landed beyond the fence (15 sixes off 75 balls). He does so with a note-perfect bat-swing, which makes up for his lack of Chris Gayle-like shoulders or the forearms of Sanath Jayasuriya or the wings-span of Matthew Hayden. But he dismisses the media-spun portrait of him as a natural six-hitter.

"It is not true that someone is a born six-hitter. It is something that you get with maturity and exposure. When I started, I was a timid boy. But I became bolder after I began to play more frequently," he says.

He could come atypically soft-spoken for a cricketer from Delhi, but he doesn't take refuge in platitudes. He could be playfully blunt too. Asked about the "specifics" of Ponting's counsel to him, he faked innocence. "I frankly don't remember what he told me. I would remember it only when I am at the nets or batting in the nets," he says. As if to assert his innocence, he repeats, "Sach mein sir, sach mein yaad nahin hain."

Bill to scrap post-study work permit may draw fire in US

MANU KAUSHIK
New Delhi, April 10

WITH THE US government reportedly preparing a Bill to terminate Optional Practical Training (OPT) programme, India's study-abroad platforms remain unconvinced that it will succeed. They argue that the legislation would be detrimental not only to students but also to the US higher-education sector, and expect significant pushback from universities and industry alike.

"Any legislation like this will reduce the number of students going to the US, in addition to having an impact on the quality of students that the US universities will attract," said Karunn Kandoi, founder and CEO of Vidya Education.

Experts stated that the bill is still in its early stages and is largely driven by a handful of advocacy groups. "If implemented, the Bill will severely impact nearly 4,000 universities in the US who are dependent on foreign students to fill their seats. Over the past few years, the enrolments of local students in US universities has gone down drastically due to declining value of degree programmes. This has increased their dependence on international students. The universities will likely oppose this Bill, and hence, we don't see any near-term implications," said Saif Iqbal, vice president at ApplyBoard.

OPT, which is tied to the F-1 student visa, allows international graduates to work in the US for up to 12 months — and up to 36 months for those with STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) degrees. Any abrupt end to the programme would hit India particularly hard, which is now the largest sender of students to the US after China.

IN FY25, CONSIGNMENTS WORTH ₹3,446.66 CRORE ENTERED PETRAPOLE PORT

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, April 10

BEFORE INDIATERMINATED the trans-shipment facility for Bangladesh's export cargo, trucks and consignments saw a sharp uptick at Petrapole, the nation's largest land port, data shows.

New Delhi halted trans-shipment facilities for the neighbouring country on April 8, days after Bangladesh chief adviser Muhammad Yunus advocated the extension of the Chinese economy around the strategically important North-east India region.

India first allowed trans-shipment of export cargo from Bangladesh to third countries using Indian Land Customs Stations and subsequently Indian ports and airports on June 29, 2020.

According to sources in the Petrapole Land Port's customs department, in FY24, 3,373 trucks with trans-shipment

INCREASING TENSIONS

■ India halted trans-shipment facilities for Bangladesh on April 8

■ Petrapole is the largest land port in South Asia ■ It is situated on the Indo-Bangladesh border, 80 km from Kolkata

■ India had allowed trans-shipment of Bangladesh's cargo to third countries

■ In FY24, 3,373 trucks with trans-shipment cargo entered Petrapole

■ These consignments valued at ₹2,357.27 cr

■ In FY24, Petrapole recorded trade worth ₹30,42,092 cr

commodities or export cargo entered Petrapole from Bangladesh, with 4,733 consignments valued at ₹2,357.27 crore.

In FY25, 4,686 trucks (a 39% increase) with trans-shipment commodities entered Petrapole with 7,772 consignments valued at ₹3,446.66 crore.

"The facility was extended by our country to Bangladesh in 2020, but it saw little response that year and in 2021 and 2022. In 2023, though, transshipment consignments arrived in good numbers, and there was a sharp increase thereon. Primarily, ready-made garments come to us as commodities and are then flown to European countries like Spain. The rush of consignments is seen before the European festive season, including Christmas," said a senior Customs official at Petrapole. Officials explained that trucks from

Bangladesh first carry the consignments to Petrapole, where they are checked by land port and customs authorities. Indian trucks then take them to Kolkata or Delhi airports.

"Every day, 150-200 trucks enter from Bangladesh, of which around 15-20 carry transshipment commodities. From India, around 400 trucks go to the Bangladesh side. Ever since we received the notification, no transshipment consignments are being allowed. However, normal import-export truck movement as well as passenger movement between the two countries continues," said Kartik Chakraborty, secretary, Petrapole Clearing Agents' Staff Welfare Association.

"Four trucks stationed on the Bangladesh side (Benapole land port) returned to the country yesterday. Most transshipment consignments from Petrapole used to go to Kolkata airport and then to foreign countries, either directly or via Delhi airport. This is bad news for exporters of Bangladesh, mainly garment exporters. It was cheaper and easier to send through India. Indian truck owners that used to carry the consignments from Petrapole to Kolkata or Delhi airports will suffer losses too. So will labourers who unload and load the consignments in Petrapole," Sajedur Rehman, secretary of the clearing agents staff association in Benapole, Bangladesh, said.
